INFANTILE PARALYSIS CLINIC.

Dr. Lovett of Boston Examines 50 Patients at St. Albans.

ST. ALBANS, Feb. 2.—There was a large gathering of people at the hospital in this city Saturday, when Dr. Robert W. Lovett of Boston, opened a free clinic on infantile paralysis. Dr. Lovett is holding special clinics throughout the state under the auspices of the state board of health.

Accompanying Dr. Lovett were Miss W. G. Wright, a graduate of the Boston Normal School of Gymnastics, and Miss Priscilla Reynolds, from the Children's hospital in Boston.

Dr. Lovett outlined a course of treatment to be followed by the victims of the disease, and Miss Wright gave treatment to each one.

Every doctor and nurse in St. Albans attended and there were also present physicians from Georgia, Fairfax, Grand Isle, Alburgh and Brattleboro. All were most enthusiastic over the work done.

Among those present were Dr. H. A. Ladd of the state laboratory of hygiene at Burlington, Dr. E. S. Towne, who is engaged in work in the laboratory of the college of medicine of the University of Vermont; Dr. C. F. Dalton of Burlington and Dr. H. D. Holden of Brattleboro.

Fifty patients were treated, 47 Saturday, the largest number in one day of the clinics held in the state, the same as here. The oldest patient here was 79 years old, having been a victim of the disease when four years old. Means for walking more comfortably were suggested.

Mouth-Old Chickens.

In the poultry department of Farm and Fireside a contributor tells in part as follows how he raises and sells mouth-old chickens:

Last summer I decided to try a new phase of the poultry business. It was the selling of chicks, not day-old chicks, but one-month-old ones. I knew there was money to be made, and being made, selling day-old chicks at 10 or 15 cents each.

However, I knew there were many people who would be glad to pay more to get mouth-old chicks, not day-old chicks, but one-month-old ones. I knew there was money to be made, and being made, selling day-old chicks at 10 or 15 cents each.

I immediately filled the incubator again with eggs, and continued filling it every three weeks until the 15th of June.

I had 1,500 eggs into the incubator, and took 395 chicks out of it. I realized that I could not sell all my chicks locally to advantage, therefore I had a small advertisement inserted in a paper offering purchased one-month-old chicks at 35 cents each. The advertisement cost me $5 for three insertions. I received inquiries every day through this ad.

I had some neat letterheads and envelopes printed, and answered all inquiries the same day they were received. I also had a photographer take a picture of a "chick" of my chicks, and included one in every letter I sent out. I think that helped me sell my chicks more than anything else. I found that there was a good demand for four-week-old chicks, and at times had more orders for them than I could fill.

The inquiries and an occasional order kept on coming for weeks after I had sold all I had. I never imagined that there would be such a demand for them or I would have run several incubators instead of one.

I received 35 cents each for my chicks, while the total cost of raising them, including cost of eggs, feed, advertising, etc., was 16 cents each. However, mine were only utility stock, and of these having extra good stock, would have no trouble getting 50 cents each or more for them.

High Price of Copper in Germany.

A recent price quoted for a ton of copper delivered in Germany was $770. The price in England at the same time was $291. Germany's need of copper for war purposes steadily increases. Cartridge cases for rifles and quick firing guns are made of an alloy of copper and zinc, and the metals must be of a high degree of purity. Copper wire is indispensable for field telephones, and in the electrical industry generally nothing but copper will do. For many purposes, as, for instance, the windings on dynamos, aluminum has been tried as a substitute, but the use of it would involve risks in the making of war materials. Before the war Germany was consuming 250,000 tons of copper, and the home production was only about 25,000 tons.

Strong Defense.

Screwless Door Lock.

A screwless lock which cannot be picked from without is an invention to carry comfort to timid housewives. This lock resembles a clamp with a tongue to fit into the lock plate of the door jamb, held by a thumb screw. This device may be used on window sashes, dumb waiters and transoms as well as on doors.
